

RACK OF VEAL

An element obtained by cutting off the upper thoracic and lumbar parts of the half-carcass, along the line of separation of the neck and the shank, along the line of separation of the brisket. Includes ribs.

Culinary purpose: particularly recommended for stewing, frying, baking, and grilling.
